Bayard's Precedent In a Similar Case Which Occurred Five Years Ago.

Diplomats at the Capital Regard Minister Mizner's Action as Beyond the Scope of His Duty.

By Telegraph to The Times. Washington, Aug. 31. - [By the Associated Press.] The State Department has taken measures to secure full particulars of the shooting of Gen. Barrundia, on board an American vessel, lying in the port of San José, by officers of the Guatemalan government, and until the facts and circumstances connected with the affair are known it does not care to express any opinion of the case or the course of Minister Minzer.

Minister Minzer.

A case involving these identical points occurred in Nicaragua in 1885, and in that case Secretary Bayard informed our Minister in Central America that Nicaragua had a right to take him from an American merchant vessel, provided she was in Nicaraguan waters. The case was that of José Gomez. In a letter dated Guatemala, February 10, 1885, Minister Hall informed Secretary Frelinghuysen that he had been informed that the Nicaraguan government proposed to take he had been informed that the Nicaraguan government proposed to take from on board the Pacific Mail steamer
Honduras, then lying in San Juan del Sur, a passenger named Gomez, in transit to Panama, but wanted in Nicaragua to answer to the charge of being implicated in the recent insurrection. Minister Hall said he had directed our Consul at Managua to inform the Nicaraguan government that directed our Consul at Managua to in-form the Nicaraguan government that our . Government has never con-sented and never will consent to the arrest and removal from an American vessel in a foreign port of any passen-ger in transit, much less if the offense is political. The captain of the vessel did not give up the man, and sailed out of port without the proper clearance papers. He was tried and convicted for this by the Nicaraguan authorities. The case came before the suthorities. The case came before the State Department in this way and it held that Minister Hall had not acted according to law. In a letter to the Minister, which is dated March 11, 1885,

Similator, which is dated march 11, 1889, Secretary Bayard 8ays:

It appears that Gomez voluntarily took passage on the vessel, knowing that it would enter a Nicaraguan port. It may safely be affirmed that when a merchant vessel of one country visits a port of another for the purpose of trace, it owes the property of the purpose of trace, it owes the purpose of trace. Brazil Willing to Meet Uncle Sam Half Way. WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.- By the The reciprocity Associated Press.] amendment to the Tariff Bill, reported from the Finance Committee last week, was last night the subject of an interview between Senator Aldrich and Mr. Mendoza, the Brazilian Envoy, on special mission to the United States. Mendoza said the amendment was satisfactory to Brazil and she would be one of the first countries to make concessions to the United States in return for the removal of the duty on sugar. Mendoza said his government would not only remove the duty on farm products exported from the United States, but would admit free, United States agricultural implements and machinery and railroad equip-ments and supplies, including railroad iron. Brazii would also, he said, make a reduction of at least 25 per cent on the duty on cotton and leather goods and clothing from the United States. IN EIGHT ROUNDS.

Tommy Danforth Knocked Out by Reddy Brennan.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 31.—By the Assowith two-ounce gloves for $3500 at, Mound City, Ark. The men entered the ring weighing 128 pounds. Brennan looked like a race horse, not having an ounce of superfluous flesh, while Danforth looked heavy and fat. It was evident that he lacked training. Eight rounds were fought, and although Danforth seemed the more scientific man, yet Brennan secured first knock-down in the first round and first blood in the second.

The Memphis man fought closely and on the defense up to the last round, evidently saving himself and trying to wind his opponent and receiving severe punishment from Danforth's heavy right, which he took quietly and with great endurance.

In the eighth and final round Reddy made a rush for Danforth, dealing him a terrible righthand upper cut over the left eye, following it up by a heavy blow on the neck which laid the Streator man out. the ring weighing 128 pounds. Bren-

An Arkaneas Mob Captures an Opposing Party's Tickets.
ST LOUIS, Aug. 81.—[By the Associated Press.] A special from Little The Fugitive's Surrender Justified By Rock, Ark., says: A mob of 2500 men, some mounted and some on foot, yesterday surrounded the Morrilltown station. A Union Labor mass meeting was to be held there. On the incoming train from Little Rock, among others, was J. B. McLaughlin, a well-known Union Labor man, and George Small of Springfield, Conway county, a prominent white Republican who had been here for the purpose of getting Union Labor tickets for use in Conway county for the election tomorrow. Small carried the tickets, 7000 in all, in a valise.

When the train stopped a crowd sprang forward and poured into the cars, where Mr. McLaughlin and Small cars, where Mr. McLaughin and Shan, were seated, brutally assaulted them, captured the tickets and then went out. All business houses were closed and every man and boy was out taking part in the general excitement.

McLaughlin came tonight and his description of affairs has created great excitement. New tickets are being excitement. New tickets are being sent to replace those stolen.

SPEAKER REED'S SEAT.

Maine Democrate Talk of Making a Contest Over It. BIDDEFORD (Me.,) Aug. 31 .- [By the Associated Press.] There is much political excitement tonight because of an ovesight by the Saco Board of Aldermen in not holding a meeting between August 11th and 18th to revise the check lists according to the requirements of the statute. Leading Biddeford Democrats are anxious to push the matter and claim that the Saco Aldermen's error will invalidate the election and if the district gives a ma-jority to Congressman Reed, his elec-tion will be contested.

TRICKY MONGOLS.

Something About the Feuds in Chinatown.

CAUSES OF THE RECENT RIOTS

he Two Rival Societies and Hov They Manage Affairs The High-binders' Faction-Stealing a Woman.

Up in the County Bastile on the hill Mong Ki Lung and Lou Mong, two Chinamen, are awaiting sentence on a charge of murder in the second degree Out in the Chinese quarter of the Evergreen cemetery their victim lies buried. Fleeing from justice and wanted on a charge of murder is Wong Chee, another Chinaman. Charley Ah Him, a prominent Mongolian, is in San Francisco on trial for bigamy. Armed Chinamen patrol the streets of Chinatown night and day, only seeking a pretense to commit murder or some lesser crime. Chinese merchants and others having much interest in any of the various feuds that rage in Chinatown, like an Italian vendetta are afraid to venture out alone after dark for fear of bodily injury. For the public to understand clearly this state of affairs, it is necessary to go back some months to get at the real cause of all the bloodshed and crime in Chinatown, and at the same time learn with what cunning these heathens use the courts of justice to further their own ends.

For a long time past in this city there has existed two rival Chinese there has existed two rival Chinese companies, one the Ah Mow or Hatchet Society, and the other the Bing Quong Tong Society, an association of desperate highbinders, ready to do any deed of desperate crime to accomplish their purpose. Wong Chee, now wanted by the authorities on a charge of murder, was for a long time the leader of the Bing Quong Tong Society. Charley Ah Him, well known to the police and in court circles, was the business manager of the Ah Mow Society, which, by the way claims to be a purely beuevolent association, be a purely beuevolent association, and this claim is borne out by the majority of the Chinese merchants. Some time ago the Bing Quong Tong Society complained that several women Society complained that several women belonging to their company was stolen while en route to this city by some members of the opposition company and they were compelled to pay a heavy ransom in order to secure them. About six months ago, Sue Yook, the wife of Wong Chee, was on the train, coming from San Francisco, en route to Los Angeles. This fact was learned by a party of highbinders living in Bakersfield who resolved to capture the celestial Miss Yook and hold her for by a party of highbinders living in Bakersfield who resolved to capture the celestial Miss Yook and hold her for a ransom. Sue Yook was a very attractive little Chinese woman, and was supposed to be especially dear to Wong Chee; at any rate a warrant charging Miss Sue Yook with gsand farceny was sworn out in the Bakersfield courts of justice, and Sue Yook was unceremoniously yanked from the train and lodged in jail. Then several benevolent Chinamen appeared upon was unceremoniously yanked from the train and lodged in jail. Then several benevolent Ch namen appeared upon the scene and bailed out the unforstonate Sue, whereupon she mysteriously disappeared. Wong Chee in Los Angeles waited in vain for the coming of his almon-eyed inamorala. He soon fearned the truth and instantly began a rigorous saarch for Sue Yook, but for two weeks without avail. It was then intimated to Wong Chee that $1500 in gold coin would just about produce Miss Sue Yook, and the broken-hearted Wong Chee was about to pay over that sum, when word came that Sue Yook had been found by the Kern county officers, hidden in a well, where she had been kept for fourteen days by her captors. Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of her abductors, and also a warrant for Charley Ah Him, Wong Chee claiming that individual to be the ringleader. It cost Wong several hundred doilars to capture Charley, who was immediately acquitted on his preliminary examination. The balance of the arrested Chinamen escaped with a short term of imprisonment.

Chinamen escaped with a short term of imprisonment.

The scene of action was now transterred to Los Angeles. Charley Ah Him was living here, and so also was Wong Chee. A deadly hatred existed between them. The members of the Bing Quong Tong Society were ordered to keep out of the Chinese theater which belonged to Ah Mow. Several minor cutting affrays took place, in which the Bing Quong Tongs were worsted. Finally they planned the as-sault on Ah Mow's forces which resault on Ah Mow's forces which re-sulted in the recent riot, and the death of one Chinaman and the wounding of another. Wong Chee, one of the mur-derers, escaped, and has been in hiding ever since. Mong Ki Lung and Lou Mong were captured, red-handed, and convicted of murder in the second degree. It has only been through the vigilance of the police that other riots have been quelled in Chinatewn and other murders prevented from being committed.—

During his ramble in Chinatown, while getting these facts, THE TIMES man ran across Chan Kin Sing, an intelligent Chinaman, who speaks English fluently, and is court interpreter in Justice Austin's court. To THE TIMES man who related to Chan what he had learned, he said: "Yes, all ting this Blurg Choose the had learned, he said: "Yes, siri it is all true; this Bing Quong Tong Society is a desperate crowd. They are causing all this trouble in Chinatown, and I, myself, can not go out after dark for fear of the control of the control can not go out after dark for fear of being murdered, as they have threatened to kill me, and I think they will if I give them the slightest chance."

"How," asked the reporter, "did you incur their enmity?"
"Well," said Chun, "you see it was in this way. I was subpænaed as a witness in the Mon Ki Lung case, and as soon as his company saw my name on the roll I was threatened by them with bodily harm if I testified. They with bodily harm if I testified. The wore very persistent with their threats but I testified just the same. One o were very persistent with their threats, but I testified just the same. One of the defendants, who was acquitted just after he left the stand, said to me: Beware of coming here to testify against us. This was Wong Gung, and I have been constantly followed by him and others ever since, especially since two of the Chinamen were convicted. I live just back of the head-quarters of the Bing Quong Tong Society, with my wife and child, but I never leave the house after dark unless well protected by my friends, as I am sure I would be killed. They have threatened to kill me for interpreting in the courts, because I refuse to interpret incorrectly or falsely. If they are not held in check by the police a great deal of blood will be shed here before long. I do not belong to any of these Chinese companies. I am a member of the Y. M. C. A., and the only reason the Chinese hate me is because I go in court to interpret so as to earn a living for myself and family."

From other sources it was learned that the Chinese claim the police are being deceived by the Bing Quong days ago wong flor was caught by the police in the act of beating a Chinamau over the head with his revolver, and exhibited his permit as an excuse to do so, but was promptly arrested just the same. Several members of the Bing Quong Tong Society effered to locate tan games for the police, but pointing out one or two they would suddenly fail to discover any more, and, in the meantime, would proceed to levy a systematic tribute on all the rest of the tan games, threatening them with being raided by the police if they did not pay. The police patrol in Chinatown is a very efficient one, but it is an exceedingly difficult thing to locate tan games without Chinese aid, and the willy heathens, knowing this, will only lend their assistance when some fan-tan game refuses to be bled. Altogether, the troubles in Chinatown keep the courts and police department exceedingly busy, especially so when they are allowed to carry concealed weapons.

RICKABAUGH BACK

He Has Returned to Answer Ben-nett's Charges.

Louis Rickabaugh, who was ac cused about a month ago by the pro-prietor of the Hoffman House, of leaving his board bill unpaid, returned to this city and was seen by a TIMES reporter regarding the affair yesterday "The thing is an infamous outrage," said the portly sport, "and 1 am back here to settle it. When I took the Hoffman House the Bennett family, consisting of the old man, his wife and adopted son, came to board with me. I only charged them $65 a month and gave them the best in the house. After they had been there awhile I wanted to get rid of the place and told them they could have it for a good deal less than it cost me. To make a ong story short, they took the house, and I kept my room. Shortly before I left for the Sacrament, races I learned and I kept my room. Shortly before I left for the Sacramentoraces I learned that they had taken an inventory of the furni ure, bedding, etc., and found a lot of pillows and quilts were missing. We had a little dispute about these things and when I got ready to go I told them to make out my bill and send my trunks and boxes down to a truck. I sent my trunks to the depot and stored my boxes. This was the night before I left and the next morning before I left I asked for my bill and they handed me one for about $100. I knew that I owed them but $58 and I fatly refused to pay the bill, and I tendered them the $53. I then left the house and took the next train for the North. I am always ready to pay my just bills, but I don't propose to pay any unjust claims, and I will not pay this if it costs me $500. As soon as I got out of town they raised a row and swore out a complaint for my arrest. As soon as I reached the city I telephoned the Bennetts notifying them that I am here to answer any charges they may have to answer any charges they may have to make, and they will get enough be-fore I leave."

ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL

An Old Woman Annoyed By Alleged Detectives. Saturday evening G. P. Walfron who lives at 442 Ducommun street and is employed at White's carriage works on Los Angeles street, complained at the Police Station that an old lady, a relative of his, had been annoyed by a couple of alleged detectives, who had been trying to levy blackmail on her. It appears that at a fire on Fifth street some days ago, a purse containing $135 was lost. This purse was found by a son of the old lady, and it was returned to the owner, when it was returned to the owner, when it was claimed that the money was $15 short. By some means or other, the two alleged detectives learned of the affair, and have since been threatening the old lady to have her son locked up if he did not pay them money. The men were taken into the detectives' room, where Officer Wallin gave them a severe reprimand and let them go, at the same time warning them that if they were again caught personating officers they would be arrested and prosecuted.

Walfron was called on yesterday, but he refused to give the names of the men or say anything about the oc-

They got away with $50 on the change swindle racket, which is worked by getting a cashier rattled and playing a little sleight of hand on him, and will probably get a good dose in the County Jail. Almost a Serious Accident. There came near being a serious accident last night on the cable road at the corner of Broadway and Fifth street. The grip caught in some kind street. The grip caught in some kind of an obstruction and several passengers on the dummy were thrown violently from their seats and landed ten or twelve yards from the train. One or two of them were considerably bruised, but were not otherwise in jured. This is the third or fourth accident of the kind that has occurred during the past week.

THE RAILROADS.

How Southern California Has Been Advertised.

PRODUCTS SHIPPED BAST.

An Influx of Small Farmers Looked -Talk With a Prominent Railroad Man-Gen-

Local railroad men and excursion agents are of the opinion that more has een done this summer to advertise Southern California in the East than ever before in the same space of time. Carload after carload of green fruit and vegetables have been shipped East and the Eastern people now know what the soil of this country can do. In the past it has been thought east of the Missouri River that a large majority of the fruit of Southern California, outside of oranges, was grown on paper, for the reason that they only saw puffs, etc., in newspapers and pamph-lets. The people of Southern Califor-nia never thought it worth their while to ship fruit and vegetables East until this summer, for consumption, but they have probably learned now that one train-load is worth more from an advertising standpoint than the permanent exhibits and dis-plays on wheels that were ever gotten up. Everybody knows that a display can be gotten up for any section, but when a country begins to send out stuff for general use, then

Had the people of Southern Cali-fornia commenced shipping their pro-ducts to the East five or six years ago the chances are ten to one that the ducts to the East five or six years ago the chances are ten to one that the population would be a third greater than it is today.

A well-known railroad passenger man, who has just returned from the East, said to a Times man yesterday;

"Our fruit shipments East this summer have caused more talk than anything that has ever been done. In the past the down-East farmer, who is a mighty suspicious animal at best, has looked on us as the biggest blowhards and boasters in the world, but when they see the finest fruits and vegetables in the world rolling in by the ton they are obliged to change their minds, and I am confident that you will see thousands of them heading for our shores this fall and winter. They now know that our pumpkin stories are now know that our pumpkin stories are true, and from what I have seen and heard during the past few weeks I am confident that a small-farmer boom will strike us this winter.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

W. Williams, a Laborer, Run Over Near Florence.

Last night train No. 3, which left the Wolfskill depot at 5:15, for San Pedre and Long Beach, ran over a farm hand, named Wallace Will ams, one mile and a half this side of Florence, and instantly killed him. The man was stretched out by the side of the track with his head resting on the rail, and the engineer did not see him until it was too late. The wheels of the engine passed over his head, crushing it into a pulp. It is not known whether it is a case of suicide or drunkenness. No papers were found on his person or in his effects where he worked to indicate where he came from or who he is.

He has been working in the neighborhood of Florence on ranches for several months past and it is believed that he came from Ohio, although he never talked about his past life. He has been drinking some during the past The man was stretched out by the LONG BEACH TRAGEDY.

Details of the Drowning of Mr. Downes Saturday.

after the man who was said after the Florence.

The Long Beach tragedy is quite a sad affair. Mr. Downes took his wife to that place a few days ago for her health, and on Saturday afternoon, while he was standing on the beach watching the bathers, some one called out that a young couple who had called out that a young couple who had gone out beyond their depth were drowning. He plunged into the water and succeeded in helping them out, but he had been troubled with heart disease, and the excitement was too much for him. He went under, and when some of the swimmers succeeded in pulling him out it was too late. He was a middle-aged man and was highly thought of in Riverside.

Got the Wrong Man. It appears that there was some mistake about the capture of Max Edelmuth, the young clerk detected in robbing Meyberg Bros., at Newhall. As stated yesterday morning, Saturday evening a telegram was received say-ing that Edelmuth had been arrested at that place by Deputy Sheriff Ed.
Pardee, and that he would be brought back to the city. He did not get in on the train that evening and yesterday Sheriff Aguirre went up to Newhall with a man to identify Edelmuth.

THE ABLE JURY.

Some of the Abuses of the System.

HOW JUSTICE IS DEFEATED.

The Mode of Procedure all Right, I Strictly Carried Out-The Ex-ceptions the Trouble-Incompetent Jurors.

Whenever it happens that the trial of some important case terminates in a totally unexpected verdict, the average citizen stops long enough in his pursuit of personal interests to ask himself questions like these: "Where can the twelve men have been found to return such a decision as that?" "How does it happen that men of such mistaken sympathies or warped judg-ment are allowed to get on the list of possible jurors?" "Whose fault is it; and what must be done to prevent such things from happening?"

The question of the value for the

The question of the value of the jury system itself does not very often come into the discussion. The fact that the institution has flourished in Anglo-Saxon countries since the beginning of law, shows that it is proof against serious criticism. The ques-tions which the average citizen asks are with regard to the jury system as practiced in this State—its draw-backs and how best they may be corrected.

The Code of Civil Procedure of California provides that at the end of the year the Judges of the Superior Court shall send to the Board of Supervisors a statement of the number of jurors they are likely to need during the ensuing year. Then at its first meeting in January the Board proceeds to make a list, from which the men to try cases, both civil and oriminal, in the Superior Court throughout the year must rior Court throughout the year must be selected. They also select a list from which Grand Jurors are to be taken.

The theory on which this list is constructed is that every section of the county is to be represented in proportion to its population. Each one of the five Supervisors is allotted a certain number of names, and he will present them in tabulated form, with the locality which they represent written above each group of names. The list for the county will contain from 300 to 500 names, or an average of some eighty to each Supervisor.

to each Supervisor.

Now, with regard to the kind of men that it is expected the Supervisors will select: The Code provides, first, that they shall be "suitable and competent." they shall be "suitable and competent."
Later it becomes more explicit, and the statement is found that they must have been entered on the last preceding assessment roll, must be citizens of the United States, residents of the State one year or longer and of the county three months or more. It further provides that they must be "in possession of their natural faculties," "of fair character, approved integrity and of sound judgment."

All this sounds like the description

sound judgment."
All this sounds like the description of a very superior class of jurymen. If the requirements of the Code should always be fulfilled in these particulars there would be no question that the verdicts rendered by the courts would be as nearly correct as the general uncertainty of human affairs would permit.

certainty of human affairs would permit.

The trouble bettins with the fact that the Supervisors in their selection of men for the pay list do not invariably get those that are "suitable and competent." A Supervisor is but a man, and when one of his constituents whom he knows to be respectable and decently housest asks to be put on the list he is very likely to enroll the name. The solid men of his district as a rule are unwilling to serve. They have business interests that must be attended to, and when they learn that they are likely to be called they plead with the Supervisor and beg to be omitted. In their places come forward men, who, while they are not quite pro-cents a mile for mileage. On an average a juryman will make about $45 a month in the time that he is in steady service on a term trial jury. It need not be explained that a man who is willing and anxious to leave his business to earn such a sum as that cannot have very much business to leave. Morever it is evident enough that a man who will deliberately try to get into jury service, understanding, as he man who will deliberately try to get into jury service, understanding, as he must, the nature of the duty, cannot be afflicted with very severe scruples. It therefore follows that these men who ask to be put on the list should be vigorously excluded.

After the list is prepared and a copy filed with the County Clerk, the names are written on slips of paper and placed in a box. The Judge orders the clerk to draw out of the box enough names for the term trial jury. There are four terms in the course of the year, and the drawings take place in January, April, July and October. When a jury is needed to try any case twelve men are selected from the box containing the term trial jury.

After this term trial drawing takes place the venire is turned over to the

After this term trial drawing takes place the venire is turned over to the Sheriff's office, and it is expected that all that can be found will be served with a notice. It sometimes happens, however, that, although many appear to be called, but few are chosen, for the result of the labors of the Sheriff's office will show only care. the result of the labors of the Sheriff's office will show only one man out of two that can be found. Here it is that the second difficulty comes in, that of securing the service of the good men whose names are on the list. It is one thing for a citizen to stand on a street corner and complain of the incompetency of juries, and quite a different thing for him to be willing to sacrifice his time and do service himself. When the Deputy Sheriff starts out with his hands full of notices to serve he is regarded with trepidation by every citizen that he approaches.

"I have a summons here for you for jury service," he begins.

"For heaven's sake let me off," begs the citizen. "I won't be missed. Say you could not find me."

you could not find me."

Then he proceeds to give a number of good reasons why he should not be taken from his business. It will be ruin, he declares; and the deputy finally agrees to go without him if he maily agrees to go without him if he can.

There are two more ways in which the good men are kept off the juries. They may, after they are brought into court, offer the Judge what he will regard as a good reason why they should be excused, and they may be peremptorily challenged by one side on the other. The lawyer who has a weak case does not want a jury of strongly intelligent men if he can help it, and he will exercise all his peremptory challenges in getting rid of them.

Mr. Hardesty of the District Attor
Mr. Hardesty of the District Attor-

Inor's office said to a reporter of The Tinks yesterday, when questioned about this matter: "I should like to see a law enacted making it a misdemeanor for a man to ask a Supervisor to put his name on the list, and have such asking disqualify the man from service. These men who habitually hang juries and put the county to the expense of a second trial are nearly always irresponsible individuals who have nothing at stake and who for some reason always sympathize with the accused—no matter what the facts proven are. I do not mean that men of small property make poor jurors. Some of the clearest-headed men that ever serve are workmen who have saved up enough to buy a house and lot and are on the assessment roll. The bad juror is the man who is known among other men as lazy or worthless. He will have some favorite lawyer or lawyers and whenever they try a case he will do his best in their behalf and stand out against eleven others, if need be, to do it. In short, he cannot be relied upon to return a just verdict, and he should, if possible, be forever kept from serving on a jury."

THE EAST SIDE.

Dissatisfied With the Street Car Ser-vice—The Public Schools. Parties living at the terminus of the cable road and its branches on the East Side are somewhat indignant over the transfer rule the company has adopted, viz: Transfers are given upon any continuous line of road or its branches. A person can ride from Prichard street to the terminus of the Prichard street to the terminus of the cable at Boyle Heights or to the end of the Seventh-street line, or to Jefferson street, or out the Washington-street line for a nickel, while it will cost ten cents to ride from Prichard street to Grandin street, to the end of the car line en Pasadena avenue, a distance of about two miles on the company's own road. They can see no reason for the discrepancy made and think the rule an unjust one. When the franchise was granted on Pasadena avenue it was understood that a car every 15 minutes was to be run over the road from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., which accommodated the people very well, and this service was continued on that time until the consolidation of the companies and a monopoly was formed. Then til the consolidation of the companies and a monopoly was formed. Then the service was changed to a half hour service and from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. only, running a sufficient number of cars to hold their franchise, which works a great hardship on the traveling community. People have become somewhat disgusted with the accommodations and are now furnishing their own conveyances and letting the company go without their fare, and will continue to do so until the company feels that to do so until the company feels that the citizens have rights that should be A considerable discussion is going on respected.

A considerable discussion is going on among the representative men on the East Side over the Council proceedings and discussions of the school money and the retrenchment plans offered by that honorable body. It is held by some of the best financial school men on the East Side that the school system (as at present existing) is a very extrayagant luxury and is running too much machinery to accomplish the amount of work done. For instance, the paying a large number of teachers that have no classes or work to do but superintend a building at a salary of $100 or more per month, the superintendent and assistant superintendent of janitors, which cost the city on an average of $200 per month, a music teacher at $100 per month for singing with the pupils for 20 minutes once in two weeks, the rudiments being left out of the question; a writing teacher at $100 per month for his services of 30 minutes once in two weeks, when copy books with printed copies in the hands of good teachers will accomplish the same results, if not better; a drawing teacher who comes in about as often as the ones heretofore mentioned, and at about the same price. The same results, it is claimed, could be obtained from a good teacher who is presumed to be sufficiently familiar with the subject to handle the cards used for that purpose by the special teacher. with the Supervisor and beg to be omitted. In their places come forward men, who, while they are not quite professional jurors, are something on that order. They are unthrifts, with little at stake in the way of property interests. They may be honest and of fair reputation, but they are not as a rule likely to be of sound judgment.

The most that a man can earn in a whole month's jury service's about $75. He receives $2 per diem and 20 cents a mile for mileage. On an average a juryman will make about $45 a own school without a special superin-tendent, and also claim that the success of every teacher should be their recommendation for continuance in the public schools of the city. A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

A City Lady Who Required Proof Before

There recently appeared in the San Francisco Call, Chronicle, and Examiner, a proposition hitherto unhoard of in similar business relaattinetto thingard of in similar business reis-tions. It was nothing more nor less than an advertisement in which the Edwin W. Joy Company, he proof of the curative properties of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, offered for a limited period to submit it to the terrific test of "no cure no pay." Many accepted, and their letters giving their experience are so convincing as to be almost beyond belief. Here is another, written under date January 6, 1800:—

laborers, some continuing for a long time, but none having the importance of the present trouble. Among the larger strikes was the strike of employés in iron works in 1885, against a reduction of wages, involving 1182 laborers. An account of this strike was given in the Overland Monthly, vol. vi, p. 35. It lasted only ten days and was successful. The strikes on street cars in 1886 involved 508 strikers, and lasted 4, 144 and 122 days respectively. The first, declared to establish the right to belong to labor organizations, was unsuccessful; the other two, for in crease of wages and reduction of hours were unsuccessful. Readers will reme mber the unsuccessful attempts to me mber the unsuccessful attempts to establish om nibus lines in opposition to the car companies, with the failure of which the strikes died out in April and May, 1887. But apart from these, there have been no important strikes in California in the past.

A table published by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics in 1887, places the number of strikes occurring in this State prior to that date at 107. These-strikes involved 8203 laborers, and had an aggregate duration of 1058 days. Of these, 77 were successful, 29 unsuccessful and one partly so. The loss to employés was $324,629, that of the employers, $311,093. Only 49 of these strikes are classified according to causes and results, and from these we obtain the following tables:

CAUSES. RESULTS.

Unionism.... 1 Sympathetic. 834 5

Sympathetic.

Miscelianeous 6 334 5 536

From these tables it appears that while the largest number of strikes have resulted from disputes about wages, and the larger number of these strikes have been successful, the unsuccessful strikes of this class have involved the larger number of laborers.

Strikes resulting from unionist causes—the refusal to work with non-union men, etc.—have been below the average, and there has been but one sympathetic strike. This indicates the fact that the organization of labor has not yet been carried in this State to the point that it has reached in the East. The eldest unions in this State date from 1858, 1865 and 1868 respectively, and these unions are not among the strongest, having memberships of 10, 165 and 300.

Comparing these figures with those for the stronges of the second strikes for the second strikes.

The number of strikers in 1889 was 210,000; during the first six months of this year, 176,192. As strikes are generally more numerous during the early part of the year, the average for the whole of 1890 will probably be not much above that of the two previous years. From this it appears that the number

From this it appears that the number of strikers throughout the country is growing less. It also appears that the percentage of successful strikes is growing greater, and that success has been gained in those strikes involving the larger number of strikers, as shown by the increased percentage of successful strikers. This means that strikes have been entered upon with more caution than was formerly the case.

The same story is told by the statistics showing the causes of strikes:

Cause. Strikes. Strik

For purposes of comparison we may give here the percentage of strikes and strikers in California similarly ar-ranged, the figures being for five years

Strikes. Strikers.

... 14.5 5.8
... 2 23
... 22.9 9.7

From these two tables it appears that while California shows about the same average of strikers for wages, the num-ber involved in such strikes is relatively much larger. The unionist strikes including those regarding apprentices are below the average both as regards strikes and strikers, as are the sympa-thetic strikes. The miscellaneous thetic strikes. The miscellaneous strikes are above the average for the theire strikes. The miscellaneous strikes are above the average for the whole country.

This comparison of the strikes in California with those for the whole country indicates two things. First, the strike, as a means of forcing upon the attention of the employers the claims of labor, has made considerable advance; and while the day when the strike will give place to arbitration is yet far distant, it is approaching. This result has been brought about by two things. Capital has become less arbitrary in its dealings with labor, and the laborers have become far less unreasonable in their demands. Education has made rapid progress on both sides, but at a terrible cost in loss of production, suffering among the laboring classes, and bloodshed where the passion and bitterness of the struggle have been most aroused.

The second indication of this comparison is the fact that in this State the struggle is just entering upon that stage where strikes and bitterness of feeling are the most prominent features. While the Eastein States are slowly passing out of the era of strikes, we are but just entering into it. Under these circumstances the strike of the irou moiders assumes the greatest importance, and deserves the most careful study.

The facts connected with the strike are already somewhat familiar, but a review of them will be valuable as the basis of any conclusions. Trouble between the employers and employes in the iron and steel industries has been continuous throughout the country, in the iron and steel industries has been continuous throughout the country, in spite of the fact that these industries receive higher and more continuous protection by the tariff, for the purpose of allowing them to pay high wages, than almost any others in the country, and the struggle has been more or less continuous in this city. It was largely on account of such troubles that the Iron Molders' Union was organized as early as 1873, with thirty charter mem Molders' Union was organized as early as 1873, with thirty charter mem-

Valentine, president; David Robertson, vice-president; Richard Burnett, recording secretary; J. S. Collins, corresponding secretary; Henry Dillon, financial secretary; and Thomas Hedley, treasurer. The association is a branch of the International Molders' Union, and has the usual features of sick benefits, insurance, and the burial of inefits, insurance, and the burial of in-digent members.

After January 1st of this year the pay was to be reduced to $3.00, according to this notification. The reason for this was the sovere competition with Eastern firms, and the depressed condition of the business. The union, however, declared that the competition that was ruining the foundries was not that of Eastern firms, but the local competition among themselves.

The Engineers' and Iron Founders' Association was an organization of the stronger foundries of the city, for the purpose of securing united action in the struggle with the union, and comprised the following foundries: union, Risdon, Fulton, National, Occidental, Byron Jackson's, Golden State and Miner's, Gurratt's, Industrial, City and Pacific Equations

Pacific Foundries.

A conference between the association and the union followed the recipt of this notice, and the following propositions were made by the association.

ciation:
First—That the union shall, at its next convention, endeavor to secure for the shops larger percentage of aprentices.

Second—That the minimum rate of wages be fixed at $3 a day.

Third—That apprentices, after their time had expired, should work one year under instructions before being entitled to demand the minimum rate.

Fourth—That all limitation on work causes—the refusal to work with nonunion men, etc.—have been below the average, and there has been but one sympathetic strike. This indicates the fact that the organization of labor has not yet been carried in this State date from 1853, 1865 and 1868 respectively, and these unions are not among the strongest, having memberships of 10, 165 and 300.

Comparing these figures with those for the whole country, these facts appear more prominently. During the last four years and a half there have been an average of over 600 strikes in the United States each year, with an average of 154,650 strikers, or about 288 to each strike. Reduced to percentages of the respective populations, this indicates that in California strikes have been a little less than one-fifth as numerous as in the whole country, while the average number of strikers to each strike has been aboutone-third the average for the whole country.
Following the analysis of these figures a step further, we find the following results:

tention to the union, announcing that it would go into effect on March 10th. Before that time three molders in the Occidental Foundry were discharged for limiting the day's work at the direction of the union, and this precipitated the struggle.

On March 3d the molders in the shops of the association went out on strike. There were 162 strikers, from the twelve shops, and with them 38 apprentices went out, though they were not members of the union. The strike thus begun has now lasted five months without the least sign of agreement between the parties. The molders in the Vulcan Iron Works went out with the others, but as this foundry did not belong to the association, they afterwards went back to work there, leaving eleven foundries involved; about one-quarter in number, though considerably more than that in value of output, of those in the city.

The molder's expected to force the foundries to terms by refusing to work for them, but in this expectation they have beretofore been disappointed.

Two weeks after the beginning of the strike the foundrymen made their first important move. On March 18th, 46 molders from the Eastern-States arrived, and were set to work in the foundries. The molders met this move rived, and were set to work in the foundries. The molders met this move by trying to gain over the imported men. They succeeded with 30, and sent them back East, leaving 16 to the foundries.

WE publish this morning an article on the strike of the iron molders in San Francisco, taken from the Overland Monthly. It is, as the writer says, the first strike of great importance which has occurred in California. The figures given show that in the various strikes, 2941 strikers have been successful, against 3774 unsuccessful The figures are very strong and impressive. They prove very clearly the evil that is worked by strikes, yet, notwithstanding this, the author appears to have a leaning in favor of the strikers.

THE TRIANGULAR TUSSLE.

prominent citizen and politicia writes a strong letter to THE TIMES on the Republican Congressional deadlock, giving a close analysis of the situation as he views it. The question of the "obligation" is handled without gloves, and the rights, duties and policy of Los Angeles county in the matter of a Congressional nomi-nation are adverted to in a clear and candid manner. The writer takes the ground, substantially, that the claims of San Diego to a certain number of Los Angeles svotes for her candidate, on the debt-paying baiss, are not well substantiated; in fact, that those claims are absurd and untenable, and he has an evident leaning in the direction of the Los Angeles aspirant. Without indorsing all that our correspondent says, or going into the argument at this time, we give place to his letter as another contribution to the literature of the pending "ruction." We add a single remark: In the matter of political debt-paying, San Diego is not the only county entitled to make demands upon Los Angeles; Fresno, with less clamor, has equal claims to our reciprocal consideration, for it was largely through the friendly and zealous efforts of Chester Rowell that the votes of Fresno and Tulare-twentyfive in number—were given to Col. Markham in the State Convention.

AN IMPORTANT LAND DECISION.

A decision of much interest, affecting a large tract of California land, has just been rendered in Tulare county.

Those who have lived in the State for 13 years or more, will remember that much indignation was caused in 1877 by the entering of large tracts in Tulare county by Thomas A. Chapman, under the desert land act. Much of this "desert" land was covered knee deep with water. It was afterwards acquired by Haggin and Carr, and their efforts to drive squatters from these lands caused riot and bloodshed

The case in question turned upon the claim of a settler who, about a year ago, filed a homestead claim on a quarter section of this land. When he came to perfect his claim J. B. Haggins protested against the entry of the land by this man, Doherty by name, and the case was heard by Register Wright and Receiver Freeman of Tulare, who have filed their opinion, awarding the land to Doherty.

The decision has aroused much enthusiasm in Tulare county, as the tying up of the large tract of land in ques-tion has blocked the progress of that part of the State for thirteen years. Nothing was done by the original claimants to irrigate or improve the land, and in 1889 Mr. Doherty, after entering a hom estead claim under agreement with the original filer, built a house and barn, fenced the land. dug an irrigat ing ditch, and put his land under cultivation. As soon as he began to make improvem ents Haggin and Carr threw obstacles in his way. What steps they took in this direction are narrated in a Bakersfield direction are narrated in a Bakersfield paper, the Echo:

To bring water to his land it was necessary to dig a ditch along the public highway for about 200 yards. No sooner had he begun to dig than Carr applied to the courts for an injunction on the grounds that he was injuring public property—the road. But at the same time Haggin and Carr were themselves constructing a ditch of equal size on the opposite side of the same road!

When the temporary injunction was dissolved, Chinamen were sent at night to cut the ditch and turn the water in on the succompleted work, washing away headgates and adding to the expense.

But at last, when the ditch was completed and the field put in cultivation, vaqueros were sent with bands of cattle to invade it and éat the growing crop. This move Mr. Doberty checkmated by the sid of his trusty riffe.

When the time came for the head of his Donerty eneckmand by the bearing of the petition for commutation and final proof Haggin and Carr were on hand to object. Before stating the grounds of objection we dare say not one man in ten thousand could guess it. They actually had the "nerve" to object on the ground that the land was suitable for a reservoir site and hence expent from entry by the arid land act of Any one that has ever seen the country in that vicinity knows that for miles in every direction the land is under cultivation and irrigation and is practically as level as floor; that to store water on Mr. Doherty homestead would require the erection of a restraining levee on all four sides of it. Disinterested parties who heard the testimony openly declared that it was the most audacious scheme they had ever seen tried before any tribunal.

The end has not yet been reached in this matter. Haggin and Carr have begun an ejectment suit in the Superior Court of the county and will probably endeavor to wear the settler out with expensive litigation. It is difficult to understand the action of the General Land Office in this matter. It is 13 years since the Secretary of the Interior ordered a suspension of all action in about seven hundred land entries in the Visalia land district. into the methods of the land grabbers.

During all these years nothing has been done save the taking of a mass of testimony in 1880. Meantime, the parties accused of trying to steal the lands have held possession, while the claimants have been kept from perfecting their title. Nearly all of them have become discouraged the Government retains the first payment made on the land.

It seems to be little to ask that the Secretary of the Interior should decide this case one way or the other. The development of a very fertile section of the State has been retarded for many years, and land which would have furnished homes for thousands of people has been used only for pasture.

THE following paragraph, intended for editorial, was misplaced in yesterday's issue. It is now reproduced for the purpose of emphasizing the point

The Lindley boomers, in their eager ness to make a show for their candidate, were somewhat too zealous at Friday evening's "whoop up." The paraded (in the Trompone) a formidable list of vice-presidents who were alleged to be at the meeting, though most of them were non est. In the number was included the editor of THE TIMES, a known supporter of another candidate [Rowell.] Col. Otis begs to present his compliment to the boomers, and to say, deferentially, that, if admissible, he would like have some choice in these matters

And further, that this cheeky at tempt to drag people into positions where they do not belong, against their will, is the poorest and cheapest against sort of politics, to practice which will do the authors no goods

CENSUS PROBLEMS.

The census figures for the entire country have been much questioned by the press. The San Francisco Call claims that, if the figures given were accurate, the death rate in the country must exceed the birth rate. Mr. Porter's bureau now concedes that the total population of the country is 64,000,000. It is probably more than that, but we shall have to accept this number as reliable until another count is made. The calculators are already busy with predictions, based upon the census returns. The New York Sun reckon that, by the year 1950, the population of the United States will be 224,000,000, and that of the United Kingdom 68,000,000, thus making this country the predominating Anglo-Saxon power of the world, as it is, indeed, today, in a less degree. Some people express doubt that we shall ever see as many as 250,000,000 people gathered together under one government. They maintain that, long before then, the crowded condition of the country will have checked the natural increase, through the difficulty of feeding such vast masses of people, thus forcing emigration, and that, unless our experience is to be utterly exceptional, it will be impossible, to retain such immense numbers of people, with conflicting opinions and varied views, in one nationality. As to the latter objection, there may be some ground for it, but the former is a myth. California alone, if populated as densely as Belgium, would contain many, were the land worked up to anything like its full capacity. MUNICIPAL MISGOVERNMENT.

In an article upon the misgovernmen of cities, in The Century for September, the writer makes the following very truthful remarks. They embody a sentiment which is slowly but surely spreading among the best citizens of our large cities:

spreading among the best citizens of our large cities:

It cannot be denied that our unrestricted suffrage makes the problem more difficulty is not insurmountable, and it is not, as it is often cialmed to be, the chief cause of our troubles. We are in the habit of charging all our worst evils to the combined ignorant and corrupt vote, but there is not a city in the land in which that vote is not many thousands less than the combined intelligent and honest vote. The trouble is that the latter vote, mislead by party, names and party issues which have no bearing upon questions of municipal rule, about, evenly divided in most municipal elections, and is thus deprived of nearly all the influence. When the happy day shall come that the respectable voters of our cities join hands and say that henceforth they will know no politics in the administration of city affairs, and will only ask of a candidate whether or mat he is fit and honest, then there will no longer be any danger to apprehend from the combined ignorant and vicious vote. It will make very little difference what kind of a system we have upon which to govern the city when this spirit shall, have entered into the election of its officials, but until we can secure that spirit in the elections it will be useless to hope for reform under the most perfect system which the human mind can devise, for an ideal system administered by ignorant and corrupt men cannot produce intelligent and honest government without performing a miracle.

THE same old set of wearisome platitudes about the political situation continue to be received from Europe. Great efforts, we are told, are being made to drag Russia into the entente The Emperors of Germany and Russia are said to have fallen out, and Francis Joseph is reported to be endeavoring to get William and Bismarck to kiss and make up. What a pity it is that these bellicose sovereigns cannot meet in a ring and settle their their dependent. Self-respecting, selfstatus according to the Queensberry rules. Uncle Sam would doubtless be willing to act as referee.

The Real Duty of This District. Los Angeles, Aug. 31 .- [To the Editor of THE TIMES. | After a storm, what does the froth amount to? There has been said and published so much rubbish about who shall be Congressman, that a sensible man rubs his eyes and asks if he is dreaming. What is a Congressman elected for? as the servant of the people, to do what they consider best for the interests of the particular district, as well as for the honor, credit and benefit of the whole State, and of the whole Union. This seems now-a-days to be entirely lost sight of, and a lot of ward politicians in a particular locality demand that any third-rate candidate shall be selected as a right which that county can command! What rot! There is a debt due by I.os Angeles county which must be paid! For what? Because a specific be paid! For what? Because a specific county gave so many votes to select Markham? Then Los Augeles owes every county, except Ventura, and on that theory should commence with San Bernardipo, and give 16 votes on the first ballot to her choice—and then in similar manner pay off, ballot after ballot, to the respective counties, the compliment of throwing the proper votes to the choice of each county!!! Fresno is entitled to just as much compliment as San Diego. But, if the arpliment as San Diego. But, if the argument is worth the paper it is written upon, why is Los Angeles not entitled to receive just as much compliment for the solid 63 votes cast for Markham? Didn't that elect him? And didn't the other counties wish to have him as the nominee, when instructions were given in their local conventions, which the delegates could not disobey? And were these delegates simply Hessians, who had to be bought and paid for by some future reward, for doing what the people ordered them to do?

Los Angeles pledged her vote to Bowers in consideration of San Dieg supporting Markham? When? Where supporting Markham? When? Where? and by whom? Just as good and valid a pledge was given to the friends of Da. Rowel.—and no pledge to either. Dr. Rowel shows he had over fifty staunch friends in the State Convention who voted far Markham. Mr. Bowers never did have that number, who really wish to see him the nominee. San Bernardino would gladly Jump today—and its choice was Gen. Murray. Ventura and Kern were in the Morrow camp; and can't be counted in this discussion.

It was the boast of THE TIMES and of many outspoken journals that the Sacramento Convention was independent, untrammeled and unbought. In two weeks it is boldly proclaimed that batter and sale was its only object in this great district; and that Los Angeles traded for Markham and declines to pay the price! Let us know who it was that traded here; and under what authority? Trot them out, and let the people look at the jockeys, who undertok such a job that the Bowers faction now fairly foams at the mouth and threatens all sorts of disaster, if the bargain is not kept. If the people can be convinced that such trade was made by any considerable element in the Republican party, and that the bargain is clinched and carried into effect by the disreputable payment to Mr. Bowers of a bought nomination—there is but one sequence. If the Democrats put up a first-class man, nundreds of honest and thinking Republicans will repudiate the corruption and vote for a man untainted with such nasty tricks. We have been boasting of a new era in politics, condemning the past bribery in elections and attacking the Democrats as being the hirelings of Buckley—and then how will Republicans pose if the first demonstration in this district is the consummation of a dirty bargain between certain elements in Los Angeles and San Diego?

Now examine the proceedings of the convention which instructed for Markham. Does not every man of sense know that Lindley had nearly two-thirds of that County Convention, and that if his friends had chosen to do so they could have instructed for him? Mr. Lindley, it is well known, declined to let the issue be made, as he and his friends were sincere in desiring the nomination of Markham. The Bowers men show now that their action was for a purpose, and to be paid for their support. With a convention unquestionably for Lindley, it is absurd was for a purpose, and to be paid for their support. With a convention un-questionably for Lindley, it is absurd to say that his friends ever counten-anced any promise to do aught for Bowers. What Judge Carpenter and bowers. What Junge Calpenter and others may have chosen to promise has no binding effect on the great mass of the delegates. As the courts would hold "A contract without any consideration—and so void."

It is not necessary to discuss the unconderity of Mr. Rowers or the threats.

It is not necessary to discuss the unpopularity of Mr. Bowers, or the threats now used-of what his adherents intend to do. It is safe to say that not 100 San Diegans will bolt their nominee if Mr. Lindley or Mr. Rowell should be selected. All such men would simply be out for plunder, like falstaff's army; and the Republican party would be just that much better off to lose them right now. The district is not hunting around to pay compliments to anyright now. The district is not hunting around to pay compliments to anybody, or to put a certain salary into his pocket. This is to be the great future progressive part of California. Los Angeles has gone forward with rapid strides, and will be entitled by itself to a Congressman in probably the next five years. San Diego has a small population of 35,000. Its Representative would always have an eye-glass up diminishing the nec ssities and requirements of our coast, above San Diego Bay. Los Angeles, with proper aid from the Government, by means of a Representative, who knows its capacity, its capital and its resources, can be made within 10 years a great capital, rivaling San Francisco, without seeking to do her any injury. The Senators from California have never studied nor cared for our interestal

Senators from California have never studied nor cared for our interestal Our present Representative has never accomplished aught for us; and in the latest case pronounced the Government against our interests on the very day the President had heeded Col. Markham's request!

If the delegates consider Mr. Lindley the best man to do us service, nobody has a right to question their integrity, their good faith, or their full power to act just as they choose. We are sure that the friends of Dr. Rowell will raise no issue with our people as to failure to do him justice, or that they can charge treachery because this county—the metropolitan—takes the county—the metropolitan—takes the Representative. Dr. Rowell's friends will support Markham and Lindley just as zealously as if their' own favor-ite was selected. COMMON SENSE.

Markham and Pond

[Sacramento Record-S gna].]
Today in California there are two candidates named for the office of Governor. Col. H. H. Markham heads the Republican ticket, and his success controlling people. The Democrats have nominated E. B. Pond, and behind him and with his success there is to come into domination and control of the State government the most dangerous combination of venality that has ever menaced the liberties of any people. Buckley and his cohorts of place-hunters are to "stand before the King." The issue is one of principle, not of personality.

Handsome Words.
[Pomona Progress.]
The Los Angeles Times is feeling tiptop this season, and well it may The Times engineered, in a newspaper way, the Markham-for-Goyernor boom, from its inception to the nomination, with rare ability, and is now putting in some telling blows for Markham's election. Then, too, The Times and Herald have in four short weeks, completely eradicated from their businesses that incubus of years' growth on the Los Angeles newspaper interests, the Compositors' Union The Times is always interesting and instructive, and we know from reliable sources that it is the most prosperous daily in Los Angeles. It is an honor to the journalism of this region. Handsome Words region.

Some Foreign Words.

Some Foreign Words.

One of the fair young girl graduates who quite recently mapped out the destiny of the world in an essay entitled "A Dream of the Future," has taken to writing society novels, and her latest effort, the manuscript of which lies on the desk of the literary editor for review, is well up to the standard of current fiction. Especially is this so in the selection of foreign words and phrases which abound in the story. It strikes me, however, that they are not always up to the mark in the application.

For instance, it is going a little too far, I think, to say that the rounded cheeks of Jessica wore a beautiful sub rosa hue, and that her hat draped in nom de plumes was most becoming. I don't quite see how the little bona fide could come in wagging his tall, or that the chickens could be put into their coup d'etat. I should not care to risk my bones galloping away on a hors de combat, but I suppose I should be as safe as in ordering my steak double entendre, especially when ich dien at 2 o'clock precisely. STAGE TONES.

Decadence of the Stage Infant Phenomenon.

TEMPLETON CRITICISED.

Scanlan the Irish Comedian Next Week-Early Opening of the New York Season-Minstrels Tonight.

The reign of the infant phenomenon npon the stage shows signs of marked decadency. Of late years it attained its greatest popularity through the dramatization of Mrs. Burnett's clever story "Little Lord Fauntieroy," in which Tommy Russell, Wallie Edinger, Elsie Leslie, Flossie Ethyl and a host of other juveniles succeeded in creating a popular excitement, which, for a time, amounted to a craze. The business done by the Fauntleroy companies that traveled the country was immense; the rage extended everywhere, and here in our own city a company played two engagements of a week each, at a short interval, and reaped a golden harvest, the matinées being the largest ever known at the Opera House. Little Lord Fauntleroy having at length declined in years and Tommy Russell having grown old enough to shave, the infant phenomenon business required another boom, so "Editha's Buglar" was dramatized and then Mark Twain's hybrid "The Prince and the Pauper" was pitched upon as especially suitable for exhibiting the nascent talent of the juvenile star. In this latest attempt to stimulate public excitement, it ought to be noted that the work thrown upon the youngster who has to sustain the interest of the audience for nearly three hours every evening, has been greatly increased. In addition to the mental perplexity caused in attempting to play a dual role, and the committing of an inordinate number of "lines," the child has to make seven (the advertisements say ten) distinct changes of costume for each performance. The effect of such a monotonous strain is very evident in Elsie Leslie's performance, which is today listless and mechanical to a degree. The short season of four nights and a matinée played here last week was very fairly successful financially, but showed a marked falling off after the first night. This was owing not alone to disappointment at the little star's performance, but also because the public could not find sufficient entertainment in the rubbishy farrago of stuff that, presented without the name of Mark Twain attached to it, would be as generally condemned as it deserves. A word could be profitably added in regard to the mounting of the piece, as it might possibly prevent a similar mistake in future. The shabbiness and poverty of the court scenes, which might be tolerated in a Shakespearean play, where the familiar language and mightly thought absorbone's attention, were a distinct detriment to the production of the Tudoresque melodrama here. The completeness of a metropolitan production cannot be expected, but there is a wide step from that to the parsimonious exhibition usually afforded for a one-night stand. having at length declined in years and Tommy Russell having grown old

The Dramatic Mirror recently called The Dramatic Mirror recently called attention to the inadequacy of the service of the New York daily journals for the work of properly criticising the numerous new claimants for public favor that would soon appear, Judging from the list of new productions that have just come to the front. It would seem that the Mirror's warning was well-timed.

Daly's Theater is occupied just now by Sol Smith Russell, who appears in Dion Boucicault's latesteomedy drama entitled The Tale of a Coat, which seems to have achieved a fair measure of success. Francis Wilson and Marie Jansen have made a hit in The Merry, Monarch. At the Casino a version of Lecoq's La Fille de Madame Angot is Lecoq's La Fille de Madame Angot is being played under the simple title of Madame Angot, which is said to better fit the mature charms of Marie Halton. Charles H. Drew, formerly of the Carlton Opera Company, is in the cast, but does not appear to have made a hit, for the reason, apparently, that he has tried to sing. A new drama entitled Christopher Columbus was produced at the Windsor. It "shows evidence of deep research," but as "the speeches are long and draggy, the action tardy and the piece not well written," it can hardly be chronicled as a success.

In addition to the foregoing is a lisof new productions quite formidable in its size, and this is only the beginning of the season. Thirteen theaters are already open in New York City, an unusually early opening.

A colored minstrel troupe, known to fame as McCabe & Young's, will play an engagement of three nights this week at Hazard's Pavilion, beginning this evening. The company has been playing at the Orpheum in San Francisco, where the attendance is reported as having been large and the performance as having given general satisfaction to the patrons of that class of entertainment. The Pavilion is not well located for a minstrel show, but as the prices of admission have been fixed on the "popular" scale, the public may be expected to extend a liberal patronage.

The Grand Opera House will be closed this week, but will open again on Tuesday, September 9th, for five nights and the usual Saturday matinée, the attraction being the Irish comedian, W. J. Scanlan, under the management of Augustus Pitou. The plays underlined are My es Aroon, Shane-Na-Lawn and The Irish Minstrel. Mr. Scanlan's specialty lies in the introduction of numerous songs written and composed merous songs written and composed by himself for these plays.

The managers of the Grand Opera House have adopted a rule, which, if adhered to, will raise the standard of attractions played at their house and thereby increase public confidence. attractions played at their house and thereby increase public confidence. They have decided to refuse dates to any "star" or combination that is not in high standing enough to be allowed to play at either the Baldwin, California or Bush-street Theaters in San Francisco. This rule will shut out a lot of inferior companies, and though it will keep the theater, dark for perhaps a number of weeks in the year, its patrons will, in the end, be much better pleased with the good things set before them. Increase of appetite does not always grow by what it feeds upon, and especially is this true of theatrical entertainments. An indiscriminating entertainments. An indiscriminating supply of attractions succeeding one another with weekly regularity will soon, in a community of this size, create a surfeit in the public's taste, and a lack of patronage will result, extend-ing even to the best of companies.

THE EASTERN TURF.

Work of California Horses During the Week.

SALVATOR'S GREAT RACE

Sinaloa's Wonderful Performance a Monmouth Park-Death of Bo-nita - Isaao Murphy's Suspension.

The past week has been a sensa-tional one for our California flyers. Salvator's great performance is especially a remarkable one. Almost every lover of horseflesh in California knew that Salvator could lower the record, but few looked to see it so badly broken. True, the record, 1:354 was made on a straight-away track, which means about two to three sec onds better than on the oval track-Salvator's performance would therefore be equal to 1:37 on a round track, and that is a mark that future flyers will be a long time in overcoming. There is perhaps only one horse in training today that is capable of equaling that performance, and that is Racine. The Palo Alto wonder has never been given a show yet on these straightaway courses. but as soon as he is right and is sent out for the stuff, he will certainly do some record breaking. It would be more satisfactory, too, to some Californians to see Racine lower Salvator's colors, for Racine is a California bred, raised and owned race horse, while Salvator is Kentucky bred and raised, and the honor of his performances really belongs to the Blue Grass State, between whom and Cali-fornia there is a decided rivalry for first honors in the horse-breeding line. first honors in the horse-breeding line. However, acknowledging Salvator's Kentucky breeding, California still leads the world. The East has not yet equaled Sunol, Palo Alto, Adonis, Cricket, Marget S, and Alfred S, among the trotters and side-wheelers, nor Firenzi, Tournament, Racine, Sinaloa and others among the runners, and on the fourth of this month, when Sunol and Palo Alto start at Cleveland to lower the world's record, and the stallion record, it is more than probable that all the records, both running and trotting, will belong to California.

ning and trotting, will belong to California.

Lucky Baldwin's Sinaloa, a horse born, bred and raised in this county, ran a remarkable race at Monmouth Park, the day Saivator broke the record. Smaloa picked up 117 pounds and ran a mile nd a quarter in 2:04, just a quarter of a second behind the world's record, made by Banquet, on the same track, and as Banquet, only carried 108 pounds, Sihaloa's performance is much the best of the two.

Another great turf event has gone down in history and an almost unknown candidate for turf honors has captured the great Futurity stakes with its glittering glory of $70,000. Last year it was won by Congressman Scott's Chaos, and this year August Belmont, the New York banker, captured first money with Potomac and second money with Masher, his stable companion, making his winnings on this race alone over $75,000. Bey del Rey, the great California disappointment, started in this event, but finished fourth.

The Life of a Funny Lecturer.
(Robert J. Burdette in the Forum.)
The lecture platform (alack that it The lecture platform (alack that it should be so) is becoming a booth in Vanity Fair, and they that stand therein have wares to sell. And there be some of us, standing in the market place, who mourn, that the passer-by may lament unto us; some of us there be who pipe, that the light of heart may dance, And others still are there, good as the best of those who toil, and stand idle even until the eleventh hour, because no man hath hired them. But State.

The programme is a very attractive one, and cannot fail to please. One of the most prominent features will be the "States Representation" on Monday evening, the 8th. Forty-four young ladies have been drilling for this representation for the past month, and by the end of next week they will have their parts to perfection. At no inconsiderable expense a special uniform has been provided for the young ladies by the committee. In addition to the uniform the fair maids will wear starry crowns, and will each carry a handsome shield with the name of the State represented upon it, and a banner. They will perform military evolutions, a flag drill, moving tableaux, and in short addresses will present the especial claims of each State. A competent elecutionist has drilled the ladies for this part of their work, and it will be one or peculiar interest to the natives of each State. For California, Mrs. Eliza A. Otis has written a poem discriptive of her past, present and future. As each State recites her part, the entire company of young ladies will keep up a movement in the nature of a dissolving scene, which is very attractive.

Other features of the programme are equally interesting, and will be mentioned from time to time.

Not long ago I saw a handsome woman come into a place of amusement with a known bunco man, who had a countenance like a wolf, hungry and restless. There was nothing prepossessing about him, and, therefore, this woman upon his arm caused the most surprise, for she was rather beautiful, if a little fagged and worn. Some one had said that she had been a rich man's wife, but had passionately desired to know gambling, and to live with a gambler. It may have been that she picked up this notion from reading some of Bret Harte's stories, where all gamblers sing like operatenors, and do startling feats of generosity. osity.

MANNERS OF BRITISH MATRONS

Hospital Saturday in London-Voman Stock Broker - The Women's University Settlement in South London.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Other climes other manners, some of them interesting. A month ago in the Isle of Man it surprised me to see the women of a party of English tourists living en pen-sion come down to breakfast in their stockinged feet, pick up their shoes, cleaned by the "boots," from the table in the hall, fetch them into the dining room and put them on in public, ele vating their feet upon chairs while they bent over to fasten the buttons. They were very estimable ladies who thus put their toilet operations en evidence, and this same frankness runs through much of English life and sometimes accomplishes more than methods of indirection. Hospital Saturday in London, for example, is one of the city's most characteristic spectacles. The collection of funds is in the hands of comen and instead or putting out boxes, as in New York, where the charitably disposed may drop their offerings, the London girls themselves turn out in battalions. From early morning until sunset they fill the streets. There are thousands of them. • Each woman has little table by the curbstone or on a corner. In Piccadilly or the Strand you may pass three tables on a single block, each made gay with potted plants or bouquets of wild poppies and daisies. The girls who tend the tables put on white frocks and engaging They rattle their little red boxes in the face of every passer, and it costs a man from sixpence to a shilling to get to his place of business, at the rate of a penny for each pretty collector. There are many devices for particular the rate of a penny devices for the rate of the penny devices for the penny dev making the tables enticing. Perched on one sits a chuby two-year-old munching bread and butter, while she shakes gleefully her box half full of copper. Toddling about another is a small but the shakes the shakes are all the shakes are shaked to the shakes are shaked to the shakes are shaked to the shaked th munching bread and butter, while she shakes gleefully her box half full of copper. Toddling about another is a small boy is sailor togs who catches you by the knees and without toll will not let you go by. At the next sits a group of young women at their embroidery, a battery a few can pass unscratched. Every time your, bus stops a box is held up to it and a hall of small coin jingles down. As the afternoon advances you see the indefatigable collectors lighting spirit lamps and making tea for themselves, pouring it into quaint little cups of decorated china, all in the open air, and who could resist such allday devotion?

The English woman who goes into business does so with the same push and straightforward energy. Some of the gentlewomen who piece out their incomes by trade, show a rare intelligence in their methods. Two restaurants for women—things often talked of in New York but never attained—have resulted from the efforts of Mme. Isabel to provide attractive food at low rates for her employés, Mme. Isabel is Mrs. Cooper-Oakley, the Girton girl who went into millinery; and whatever may be said of her bonnets, her restaurants are very creditable results of university training. So pretty are they and so dainty that, instead of looking for their patronage wholly to apprentices and "improvers," the "Dorothies" their patronage wholly to apprentices and "improvers," the "Dorothies" have become favorite resorts of shop-pers, even for "carriage" patrons with eep purses. The largest of the Dorothies is in Oxford street and devotes its frontshop to the sale of peaches piled high on the beds of fern, fronds, apricots, grapes and benches of golden rod, asters and heather. Behind this are the parlors, where "gentlemen are admitted after 6 o'clock," where the decorations are Japaness on a warm red back-ground, and where one may have one's choice of two or three discriptions of meat, nicely served by blooming girls in white muslin aprons, with vegetables, coffee and bread for eightpence, making a simple meal, but one that would be appreciated in any city where there is a large body of women who work for their bread and who are repelled by the cheap restaurants, which give them badly cooked lood, yet at prices higher than they can well afford to pay. The serving of luncheon is a bold device for obtaining custom invented some time ago by London dressmakers and milliners. This season the women artists have adopted it. After a couple of hours of wearlsome shopping your eye chances upon the welcome sign of "afternoon tea" in the window of a pretty looking studio. You go in and find perhaps a charming little picture gallery where a quaintly be appreciated in any city where there and find perhaps a charming little picture gallery where a quaintly attired child, whom you at once set down for a model doing extra duty, is handing about delightfully old-fashioned nanding about delightfully old-fashioned glass plates with cake and broad and butter and cream, which you proceed to discuss, paying for them a trifle, and wishing, it must be confessed, that a little variety could be introduced into the biscuits and tea that Londoners appear to find so satisfying, while you look at the water colors and mastells the nainted photos and the matter from women reporters and special writers than most of the Lon-matter from women reporters and special writers than most of the London newpapers. A vigorous girl whom one runs across occasionally lunching with Mr. Stead in the restaurant on the Strand much frequented by newspaper people supplies fashion columns, but more serious work is done by Miss Hulda Friedrichs, who was, I believe, the first woman attached as a general journalist to a London newspaper, and who, nevertheless, must have passed 30, if she has passed it at all, very recently. Miss Friedrichs is dark, slender, large-eyed, with irregular but very attractive features, shaded by wandering rings of curly hair. Though in some sense a pioneer of her sex in London newspaperdom, she is not English by birth or education, but a German woman who spent a year or two as a governess in Russia and who has found her knowledge of the Continental lampunges of the greatest practical value to her since she came to London and to the dingy office in Northumberland street—English papers do not pride themselves on fine buildings—where I found her. She was the special correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette at Berlin at the time of Bismarck's resignation, and when the debates on Ifeligoland began she was sent off to that small but much-discussed island at an hour's notice to write up the signation, and when the debates on lifeligoland began she was sent off to that small but much-discussed island at an hour's notice to write up the signation, and when the debates on lifeligoland began she was sent off to that small but much-discussed island at an hour's notice to write up the signation, and when the debates on life to induce other unfortunates to drink of the font which restores that one the first woman at an hour's notice to write up the signation. I noticed frequent and very at an hour's notice to write up the sitnation. I notice to write up the signation. I noticed frequent and very respectful references to her articles in the arguments and leaders of both parties. Miss Friedrichs has been the London correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, and has written much in her own language for German papers and magazines.

She tells me that the outlook for women in English newspaperdom is encouraging. Several women have entered the field at free lances, though few are regularly attached staff members. mers. Her own apprenticeship was not an easy one, for she was not brought up more than other girls to understand colonial difficulties, Egyptian debts, Indian finances and such like uncanny subjects; but English pressmen have held out a brotherly hand to her, show-ing her the way over the steep places and sending her home to tend her tall and sending her home to tend her tall holyhock, her six pansy plants, her twelve geraniums and two fern roots in the garden of her bit of a cottage at Wimbledon with the feeling that life is worth living when confidence and friendliness breed confidence and friendliness in return. For the rest, her sanotum is just big enough for a table, two chairs and a picture, and from it goes out work that will do much to open more widely the door of her profession to women.

The amount of charitable work done

The amount of charitable work done wisely and most unwisely by women in a country where one person in every 35 of the population is a pauper is astounding. The "Englishwoman's Year Book," which is mainly a directory to institutions for the benefit rectory to institutions for the benefit of women, usually managed by women, is a bulky volume. East London and South London are fairly honeycombed by workers zealously trying according to their lights, which sometimes are only flickering rush lights, to ameliorite the condition of the people. The amount of prying into their affairs which the London poor will stand, and the meekness with which they will be questioned and talked to, even by the merely curious, out for an afternoon "slumming," surprises an American.

"Ten years ago," said a lady in conversation. "they would have thrown stones. Some of the clergymen who went among them first found ropes stretched across the street to trip them up and fell victims to other such play-ful eccentricities."

ful eccentricities."

One wonders at the absence at the present day of such reminders of the advisability of minding one's own business, when one sees how misery is turned into a tourist's spectacle, but the milder manners of Mile End Road, Whitechapel, etc., probably testify to the efficacy of the work which the British matron is carrying out in her own way. Mrs. Humphrey Ward's "Robert Elsmere" settlement is not doing much as yet; it is not fairly doing much as yet; it is not fairly under way. Something substantial may come of the novelist's plan or may not; the point is one on which opinion seems to be divided.

not; the point is one on which opinion seems to be divided.

The most interesting work of which I have seen anything is that of Miss Cons, who last year received a large number of votes for the office of Alderman, who does much of the executiys work of a college for working men and women, and a concert hall for good, low-priced entertainments at the Royal Victoria Hall, on the Waterloo road, and the Women's University settlements, of which there are two in the poorest quarters of London, patterned like the settlement of the college women in Rivington street, New York, somewhat upon Toynbee Hall, the original settlement of university men. The settlement at which I spent yesterday morning in Nelson Square, Southwark, S. W., is the jeint care of college women from Oxford and Cambridge: Girtoin, Newnham, Lady Margart Hall and Somerville Hall being represented among the residents. The house is rather a quaint old gray stone brilding in a little square planted with trees, a green casis in an asid desert of dirt and grinding poverty. The streets about it are narrow alleyways running with filth and the tenements so crowded and so destitute; of the most ordinary sanitary provisions into the biscuits and tea that Londoners appear to find so satisfying, while you look at the water colors and pastels, the painted photos and the fire-screens with which you are surrounded, your visit ending very probably in a purchase which it never would have occurred to you to make had not your eye been allured to leisurely inspection during the progress of your meal. The English haven't a tithe of the French genius for making people comfortable, but in the interest of trade the women are advancing by rapid steps in that direction.

So far as range and variety of employments are concerned, America is still in advance of England, but English have taken-with wonderful viger and determination. Only eighty-eight women have taken medical degrees in Great Britain as against the thousands in the United States, and women are only beginning to find their way into daily journalism; but I made, tother day, the acquaintance of a yellow-curled individual who looks as if she might be a young art student or musician, but who spends her days instead watching the rise and fall of stocks and shares in the London Exchange, Miss Amy E. Bell has been in business as a stock broker for two years, and they tell me at the Pall Mall Gazette office that she is a very fairly successful one. Like so many of the women who are markedly successful in the practical walks of life, she is a university woman, though her studies at Newnham were cut short by the illness of a relative, to nurse whom she gave up the scholarship she had won.

Miss Bell is young and fair, with rounded features that show no traces of worry over the state of the market. Her office is a very comfortable sort of rounding servers the state of the market. Her office is a very comfortable sort of rounding servers that show no traces of worry over the state of the market. Her office is a very comfortable sort of rounding servers and they be a successful in the practical walks of life, she is a university woman, though her she had won.

Miss Bell is young and fair, with roun sanctum, with a good showing of paper litter and bulky volumes. A clerk of her own sex writes in the outer room, and in the inner one she told me she was born in Siam, where her father and mother both died, leaving her to be sent home to England and brought up by an uncle, on whose death she came up to London alone, dependent on herself for her living, and resolved to make trial of the one thing in which she had always felt an interest, stock broking.

Since the Stock Exchange excludes women from the little booths within its charmed portals, Miss Bell does most of her business through a well-known firm which has shown her much kindness and courtesy. This firm has helped her from the beginning, and in no quarter, she says, has she found any prejudice or opposition. Her clients are mostly women, as might be expected, but she numbers some men among them. She does no speculative business, keeps rosy and enjoys better than one might suppose an occupation of being, so far as her own sex is concerned, without competitors.

The Pall Mall Gazette takes more matter from women reporters and special writers than most of the Longolous and the parks for crickes and active games, sending children and setive games, sending children and s

TILLING THE SOIL

A Pennsylvanian Tells What Is to be Gained by It.

ONE WAY TO RETAIN MOISTURE

Believes Southern California Has the Finest Farming Land in the Country—Locals, Notes and Comments.

Those who make farming a profession in Southern California are com-paratively few when their number is contrasted with those engaged in other lines of business. This fact impresses itself most forcibly on Eastern visitors, who see in our rich soil splendid possibilities and rich profits for the

A Pennsylvanian who has successfully conducted a large farm in the Keystone State, and who is at present visiting in our midst, a few days ago told THE TIMES reporter a good many things about tilling the soil, which he never knew before and which will bear

After some general remarks on scien tific farming the gentleman said: tific farming the gentleman said:
"There is a special end to be gained by many scarcely recognized or thought of, and which is notably applicable to Southern California; that is tillage as a means of controlling or securing moisture. The increased rainfall here during the past few years has been due in part to the large increase of tree growth; the annual precipitation could be made still larger if more of the soil was tilled. was tilled.
"Scientific investigation shows that

"Scientific investigation shows that 43 per cent of the rainfall drains away and 57 per cent. is evaporated. In considering, therefore, the permeability or drainage quality of the soil, and its water-holding power, and these as they stand related to evaporation, we mad by experimental tests that the passage of water downward is faster in a coarse than in a fine soil, and more rapid in a loose soil than through a soil that is close and compact. The water-holding power of land is its quality for retaining moisture to noursh the growing crop. A fine soil will retain much more moisture than a coarse soil, and the more compact it is the more water is retained.

"These observations lead to the con-clusion that deep and frequent tillage will loosen the soil and aid drainage so as to prevent saturation, which is one point gained. To secure an increase of moisture for the growing crops is another question. Two conditions control evaporation—the extent of surcontrol evaporation—the extent of surface and rapidity with which moisture is transmitted from beneath. Very fine, compact voil will transmit water to the surface faster than a loose or coarse soil. If the top layer of soil were close and compact and the subsoil coarse and open, moisture would rise slowly through the subsoil, but would pass off rapidly from the surface and leave it nard and dry. But if the subsoil, all beneath the top layer, were close, fine and compact, in condition to send moisture upward rapidly, then with a thoroughly tilled loose layer of soil on the surface, which would counteract speedy evaporation would counteract speedy evaporation by retarding it, we have the most favorable condition for retaining the moisture during the dry season. "You have a land here of wonderful richness and a glorious future. I can-

The returning tourists from moun tain and seashore are almost without exception glad to get back. Pasadena is the place to live in, after all.

A Pennsylvania farmer talks in structively in another column, on the value of our land for farming purposes and throws out some new ideas on the matter of tillage. He believes South-ern California has the finest land for agricultural purposes in the country, and is going to back up what he says by coming here to settle and run a farm. It more back-East tillers of the soil came here and personally inspected the opportunities this country affords we would have more farms and less

The law requires that a voting precinct shall not contain more than 200 voters. At the last city election over 1100 votes were cast. In the coming State and county election a larger vote will be polled, and yet Pasadena has only four precincts. These facts were made plain to the County Supervisors by Council some ten days ago, with a petition to redistrict the city in six districts, but the petition was not granted, hardly noticed, indeed. Now Council protests "most earnestly and emphatically," and formally asks the Supervisors to reconsider their former action. Now that a day has been set to consider the redistricting of Los Angeles and the county, the hope is held out that Pasadena may yet get a just and legal allotment of polling places. voters. Quite an amusing incident occurred on South Beach, near the plungs, where a weary mortal lay fast asleep from the effects of too much ozone. The bathers soon spied him out and covered him with sand, making a grave-like mound, leaving only his head above the ground. They then secured a couple of boards and marking pot and began to amuse themselves by inscribing on them various epitaphs.

"You have a land here of wonderful richness and a glorious future. I cannot understand why so little attention is paid to agriculture. I believe Southern California furnishes the finest farming land in the country, and, mark my word, I'll be here by next spring, bag and baggage, to prove it. And you might add that as Pasadena so far eclipses any town have yet seen, I am likely to make my headquarters here when I come.

"Good day," was the parting salutation of the Pennsylvanian as he rushed for a passing street car to inspect a new portion of the town.

HOW TO NATIONALIZE LAND.

Henry George Supported and Con-tradicted—Two Sides of the Question — News About Town

An interesting and largely attended meeting of the Nationalist Club was held yesterday afternoon, in the vestry of the Universalist Church.

An election of officers to serve for the ensuing year was held, with the following result: President, M. Larkin; vice-president, Julia B. Sunderlin; ecretary, L. H. Bannister; assistant secretary, Mrs. D. W. Leavens; treasurer, Miss H. M. Winters; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Doss; librarian, E Lewis. Messrs. Hill, Harris and Leavens, Mrs. Talmage and Dr. Kate S. Black were appointed as the Advisory Committee.

A resolution favoring the Henry George system as a means of nationalizing land was discussed at some length. Short affirmative papers were read by Messrs. Leavens and Hill, while Messrs. Gordon and Bannister supported the opposite side of the question. President Larkin made an uncorrection of the particle sides in the property of the particle sides in interesting address in favor of the negative.

IRON MOLDERS' STRIKE.

marked by the slight amount of violence that it has engendered. There have been but two cases of loss of life resulting from the existing strained relations, and they resulted in less bitterness of feeling than might have been expected. The first unfortunate affair is now being investigated in the courts, and therefore calls for no comment at the present time, beyond a reforence to the influence of prejudice and sympathy, as shown by the wide variance of the testimony of different witnesses. The second occurred on a street car while an apprentice named Rideout was on his way home from work. The aggressor in the difficulty seems to have been his may home from work. The aggressor in the difficulty seems to have been the man who was killed, and this is the only case where the aggressor has been actually proved to have been one of the strikers. The absence of violence has, of course, resuited from the fact that while the strikers have been out of employment all this time, they have been receiving support from the union, and thus their necessities have been provided for. Had this not been the case, the exasperation and consequent violence would undoubtedly have been incalculable.

During the continuance of the strikers

During the continuance of the strike

During the continuance of the strike there has been one effort to effect a compromise. The union sent the following communication to the association at the end of the fitteenth week of the strike:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14, 1890.

To the Engineers' and Iron Founders' Association of San Francisco—GENTLEMEN: At a meeting of this union held last evening, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

mously adopted:
WHEREAS, we have within the past whether the association is willing to meet with us or not.

By order of I. M. U., No. 164.

JOHN COLLINS,

Corresponding Secretary.

The reply was sent the following Monday, and read as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16, 1890.

To the Iron Molders' Union, No. 164, San Francisco—Gentlemen: In answer to your communication of the 14th inst., our association begs-to state that the members of your upion left our the members of your upion lost our employ on March 3d without notice, and that we have employed others, to take their places who are satisfactory to us; and as we have not taken any action to prevent your members from working in our shops with all the just privileges of American citizens, we therefore do not know of anything to adjust, and for that reason see no occasion for a meeting.

We join you in a hope that the cruisers will be secured for this coast, and feel satisfied that the work can be completed here in a manner to reflect credit on this city. Respectfully yours, Engineers' and Iron Molders' Association of California.

By R. S. Moore, Secretary.

The compromise that would have been agreed to by the molders has not been stated, as the proposed consultation came to nothing; but it is indicated in a girgular sent out. indicated in a circular sent out by the Executive Committee to the trades unions of America. In this circular the following terms are mentioned as having been sugare mentioned as having been suggested, and are given apparently with the approval of the committee:

"There are six questions to be settled. Of these the manufacturers should give way in three, and the molders do likewise with the three remaining. Let the molders agree that the foreman, who represents the manufacturer's interest in the shop, be not required to join any union. There must be no limit on work, except the ability of the man to turn out work. The molders to accept nine hours' work and nine hours' pay, or eight hours' work and eight hours' pay at the present standard of wages.

The manufacturers on their part to all trades unions will, in time, find it necessary to abandon. Laborers may find it to their interest in the end to join the unions, and if they do it is right that they should join. But no person should be compelled or coerced into joining. If he desires, for any reason, to remain a non-union man he has a perfect right to do so. Unionists may say that they use no coercion; they simply refuse to permit the non-union man to work with them. But do they not see that this is the same position as that of the employers, who say that they do not fight against the unions; they simply refuse to have union men work for them, or to have union men work for them, or to have union men work for them, or to have unions dictate to them? The unions will probably not directly reded from this position; but as a trade organization becomes prefected, the necessity for enforcement will become less.

The proposed reduction of wages by the foundries may have been right and it may not. The true measure of wages is the productiveness of labor, and if this becomes less, wages may be legitimately decreased. It was simily a question of fact whether the position of the founders was just. The position of the strikers on this point was unreasonable, or, rather, unreasoning. To object to a reduction of wages, whether or not the necessity for a reduction exists, is an untenable position. Yet a strike against a reduction of wages may be a justifiable one, as may a strike for an increase of wages. Had the union met the proposition of the association to reduce wages by a request for a conference that the necessity for such a reduction might be investigated, their position would have been reasonable, and a refusal on the part of the association would have been reasonable, and a refusal on the part of the association would have been reasonable, and a refusal on the part of the association would have been reasonable, and a refusal on the part of the association would have been reasonable, and a refusal on the part of the association would have been re t in the wrong.

It is for this reason that the subsequent determination of the association to refuse longer to treat with the union was unwise. Trade unions are now a permanent feature of the industrial rganism, and have changed materially organism, and have changed materially the relations of labor and capital. They stand as the champions of the rights of labor. And it is the right of the laborer to receive what his labor produces. It is further his right not the laborer to receive what is labor produces. It is further his right not to be led into demanding more than is justly due him, and the trades unions not infrequently fail to protect him in his right. They should stand not merely as his champions against the aggressions of capital, but also against his own unwise and unreasoning actions.

The contention in regard to apprentices was one of the secondary questions in this strike, but it has been a cause of dispute between all trades unions and all employers. The rule of the Iron Molders' Union was to allow one apprentice to each shop, and one additional to every eight men. The association demanded, in its communication of February 21st, that the molders should endeavor, at the next convention of iron molders to secure a larger number of apprentices for the shops. The apprentices are to serve for four years, and after that the union has permitted their employment in the shops for six months at reduced wages; thereafter they are to receive the minimum wages of molders—$3.50 a day. The association asked that the period of reduced wages be extended to one year.

The pesition of trades organizations in regard to apprentices has been criticised more severely than any other. They are accused of denying to American youths the opportunity to learn a trade, while they welcome foreign laborers with open arms.

One of the striking molders, with whom I conversed on this subject, and whose understanding of the labor situation would have put to the blush many a man whose opportunities The contention in regard to apprenand whose understanding of the labor situation would have put to the blush many a man whose opportunities for study have been far better, defended the Molders' Union in this particular. His claim was that, in regard to foreigners, they were compelled to accept them. If there is nothing against a man's moral character the union will take him in, and if he is employed in a shop where they are at work, the rules of the union require them to take him in cleave the shop.

shop.
In regard to apprentices, he claimed In regard to apprentices, he claimed that the absence of any apprentice law that the absence of any apprentice law that the absence of any apprentice law that the absence of the founders to take in boys without any agreement, and to keep thom as long or seshort a time as they please within the four years' limit. During the time they are in the shop they are under the direction of the foreman, who has no interest is their welfare, and whose interest is solely to make the best possible financial showing. He therefore keeps them at work on the simplest work.

an investment, the return for which will come in the future.

Whether this investment is wise or not, is another question. I think that it is not. The association may defeat the union in the struggle. The indications, in my opinion, point that way, for they have passed the critical period. They have established their ability to get along without the members of this union, and have been slowly but surely gaining ground. It is merely a question of time when they will be able to gain enough men, and work their foundries to their full capacity again. They have shown their willingness to spend the necessary amount of money, and their means are certainly ample. In time, the strikers will have been absorbed into other foundries or into other occupations, for the importation of Eastern men will have left the market overstocked in the iron trade. The siege will then be raised, and the strike will die out.

Why, then, is the investment of the association an unwise one? Because they have simply defeated one union. Unionism will still remain, and will still have to be dealt with, Labor organization is here to stay, and the founders cannot avoid a recognition of this fact. The defeat of one union merely prolongs the struggle, for there will be another to deal with before many years have passed. The struggle can only be ended by an acceptance of the situation, and wisdom dictates an effort to employ the new force to the benefit of mankind.

In the same sense the expenditures of the union in support of the strike are will come in the future.

Whether this investment is wise or

In the same sense the expenditures

In the same sense the expenditures of the union in support of the strike are an investment, and here too the question of the wisdom of the investment arises. The Iron Molders' Union in this city—No. 164, as it is called—is one of the richest of the trades organizations. It has received very material support from other trades organizations in the city and throughout the country. In May last the Executive Committee announced that over $20.000 tions in the city and throughout the country. In May last the Executive Committee announced that over $20,000 had already been expended in the strike. Since that time the expenses have probably been not much less than that amount. Outside of these actual expenditures has been the loss of wages to the individual molders, amounting to over $20,000. Here, then, is a loss of $60,000, amounting to enough to pay the difference between the old wages and the proposed reduced wages to the whole body of the strikers for a period of two and one-third years. Has this expenditure, when coupled with the loss of occupation and the necessity for some of the men to learn a new occupation, been justified?

The question really narrows down, or broadens out, to the question: Is a strike ever really justifiable? The loss to employes in this State from strikes has amounted to over $350,000. In the whole country the loss on strikes amounted in 1888 to $11,343,700; in 1887 to $15,380,881. Here is a loss of over $26,500,000 in two years from strikes, and of this over $20,000,000 was lost in unsuccessful strikes. The loss to the community from these strikes has been fully twice that amount, and lost in unsuccessful strikes. The loss to the community from these strikes has been fully twice that amount, and from this loss the strikers again suffer indirectly. In the face of these facts, can strikes be considered justifiable?

The justification of strikes is found in their necessity. The industrial system is undergoing a change, and there is a general uplifting of the laboring classes us there has in earlier trues is a general uplifting of the laboring classes, as there has in earlier times been an unlifting of each of the classes that stand above the laborer in the social scale. Such a period of upheaval is always attended by convulsive movements in the social body, and the hardening of social classes renders these movements more severe at the present time. In the work of self-elevation, the laborer has found no effective weapon but the strike. A less offensive one might perhaps have been found, but at such a time the first efficient weapon that comes to hand is found, but at such a time the first efficient weapon that comes to hand is the best. And that the strike has effectively forced the organization of labor forward is undoubted.

Labor organizations have made mistakes—mistakes that have cost the laborers dear, and have been not less expensive to the community. But organized labor renders possible a more perfect social organism, and brings the laborer to a better understanding of his position, while forcing broader views upon the capitalist. Strikes are therefore an investment in trade organization whose result justifies even their heavy expense, and the iron Postmaster Backus.

[Sacramento Record-Union.]

If the party success is to be jeopardized by the friends of disappointed candidates, and those friends in the enjoyment of high official patronage, accepted at the hands of the Republican party, then party rewards have been grossly misplaced. It was the boast of the California delegation shortly after the election of Harrison, that selections for public office were to be made from the ranks of those who were stalwart Republicans, and who, while accepting lucrative positions at the hands of the party, would not manifest the ingratitude of inactivity in the contest for party supremacy. The future course of the newly-appointed Republican postmaster of the chief metropolis of this State will go far to determine whether party or personal reasons exerted the largest influence in the bestowal of official favors.
